

Dear Leading Women,

Over the course of three days at the Women's Power Summit on Law and Leadership, you've been engaged in a high-level conversation that has challenged and inspired you. I'd like to personally extend an invitation for you to continue that conversation at our three-day She Negotiates Spa Retreat in Santa Barbara, California.

The Spa Retreat begins on Thursday, June 30 with a daylong exploration of the negotiation strategies and tactics necessary to both increase your current book of business, and to poise yourself for the leadership positions that the world is clamoring for you to hold. Following this, you'll be treated to your choice of delicious spa treatments, and conclude the evening with my good friend Gloria Feldt who will join us for dinner and give the keynote on courage and power.

The remaining two days of the retreat (July 1 and 2) you'll be learning invaluable negotiation skills and sharing your own skill set with an exclusive group of twenty executive, managerial, professional and entrepreneurial women. These women are prepared to move to the next level of leadership in their own work, as well as in the work of empowering the next generation to close the income, wage and power gap forever.

As a successful lawyer, I'm sure you are constantly bombarded with requests to sponsor worthy causes and support important local initiatives. I have enough experience working in law firms to know that diversity programs, while well intentioned, are frustratingly ineffective.

For this reason, I've included our Sponsorship Opportunities sheet, which I encourage you to give to your diversity chair, executive committee or marketing department. We include a range of sponsorship opportunities, some of which will enable your firm or company to give a scholarship to a deserving young woman to attend the Spa Retreat.

Please also note that ten percent of the profits from Gloria's keynote will go to the Women's Media Center on whose Board Gloria serves – an organization whose purpose is to make women visible and powerful in the media, ensuring that women's stories are told and women's voices are heard.

We believe that change is not simply possible but probable when backed by a strong community of individual voices that are passionate and devoted to changing the conversations which have been going in circles without significant improvement for too many years.

Please consider adding your voice to this important conversation.

Wishing you the best,

Victoria Pynchon, Esq.

Let's change the way we think about power

Sponsor Opportunities at the She Negotiates Spa Retreat and Dinner Keynote Program

We are at the epicenter of a new women's movement, and the fundamental question we are all asking is, "How can I use my ambition to change the world?"

In Santa Barbara on Thursday, June 30, we'll gather an exclusive group of women who will lead the final phase of the women's movement so that we may take our seats at leadership tables now. Over three days, we'll learn and master the skills necessary to transform both business and political landscapes for women everywhere.

Thursday evening we'll expand our group with a Dinner Keynote Program featuring Gloria Feldt, feminist activist and author of the acclaimed No Excuses. We'll discuss courage, power and hard work—and the three strategic choices we must all make to start changing, well, everything.

And with 100 powerful women in the same room, along with regional and national media, you will have a chance to share this message globally. Please join us as a sponsoring partner to give this new empowerment movement legs.

She Negotiates founders Victoria Pynchon and Lisa Gates bring a lifetime of solid business experience, humor and compassion to their hands-on, interactive training approach. As a lawyer, mediator and author, Victoria turns 25 years of commercial litigation into the collaborative possibilities of interest-based negotiation. As a certified professional co-active coach, Lisa blends a career in the arts, nonprofit and entrepreneurial worlds with the transformative tools of personal and professional development.
